

We Fight H1N1

Pro-active Changes Are Critical to Help Protect Your Child's Health

Kindermusik International and I are making pro-active changes to my daily classroom routines to help protect your children from the spread of viruses like the H1N1 flu.

Lessons have been re-written to avoid activities where children are in close contact

- Instead, we encourage dances and activities among same-family members.

I do rigorous instrument and classroom cleaning

- I have hand sanitizers* available for grown-ups to safely apply to children's hands.
 - I use recommended cleaners* for my instruments after each usage.
- I follow the Center for Disease Control and U.S. Environmental Protection Agency recommendations for hand sanitizers and cleaners.

New in-home lesson options will be available online

- If you miss a class but want to continue the learning and enjoyment of Kindermusik, I can show you where you can access lesson-related videos and activities online.

Ask about my generous make-up class opportunities

- If your child is sick, especially with a fever and/or flu-like symptoms, we recommend they stay at home.
- We have a variety of ways you can make up a missed class so you get your true value of your Kindermusik semester.

Kindermusik and I take your child's health very seriously. That's why we are pro-actively taking preventative measures to help keep H1N1 out of our classrooms!
